BRED THEATER

The Forest Rangers, Thrilling Western Story.

The feature picture at the Bred theater for the balance of the week deals with a phase of life in the west, that of timber thieves, and the splendid story shows to excellent advantage the methods employed by this malicious band of depredators. A government detective is on the trail of the thieves and, coming to their hideout, is disguised and begs the privilege of staying all night. He is granted this, and during the night he hears of the plan to steal a large quantity of lumber. He then plans to do away with him before morning, and the detective, hearing of the plan, goes to the place and hurries to the office of the United States marshal of the district and tells him, returning with him and his many assistants, who arrive at the shack just in time to save the life of the detective, who had been compelled to stand before the infuriated thieves as a living target.

The Biograph story for the remainder of this week is entitled "A Child's Faith," and depicts a touching story full of strong events, as well as the admirable cast in most congenial roles. The story is the success of Miss Thompson's illustrated song, "When You Love a Summer Girl," the management has decided to carry it for the remainder of this week, singing also Mary, "You're a Big Girl Now."

THAYER'S FOURTH LETTER.

Norwich Mayor Addresses Hartford Editor This Time.

The following open letter on the senatorial situation has been addressed by Mayor Thayer to the editor of the Hartford "Courant":
C. Hopkins Clark, Esq.,
You Funny Little Man:

I had prepared an open letter to the prohibition party, but of principle, barking dogs and your kindly suggestion therein put me on a new track of thought, and the prohibition train must be shunted to the sidetrack to let the newspaper go by. To warn me of impending political disaster was really kind of you, but you see it is this way: Our colored brethren in the south "get religion" at every congressional meeting, but they fall from grace soon afterward, they so enjoy "getting religion" all over again. The writer likewise courts political death, he so enjoys the resurrection. Your well intended advice while highly appreciated was of no use. But speaking of religion reminds me that the legislature in its wisdom has required that all dogs wear a tag and number; that automobiles bear a tag and number, and that every citizen has a duty to perform. The writer a short time back suggested that lobbyists wear the tag and number of their senators; and now that the senatorial question is uppermost in our thought, why not tag our U. S. senators? All dangerous things, like automobiles, lobbyists and senators, ought to have a tag kept on them. A Lorimer, no less dangerous than a benzine buggy, ought to be required by statute to wear, both fore and aft, like the auto, a metal sign on which shall be printed in black figures the tag and number, high, the total bribe fund expended in procuring his seat in the senate. The common people—no, there are no common people in America—common plain people whom Lincoln loved, could thus ascertain easily the quality of senatorial dignity possessed by each member of the "national" club. For instance, the writer, a mere barking dog, with a row of ciphers on his senatorial belt, would look no more like a dog than a senator. If our thirty cents alongside a Lorimer with a fund reaching six figures similarly indicated, and thus a situation might well call for continued editorial editorials on my lack of dignity. How Bulkeley's dignity would measure up with Lorimer's remains to be seen; but, if his advertising fund is any criterion, his senatorial bellyband will be a beauty. For I notice he is using the advertising columns of the Courant extensively; or does Nehemiah pay for that "come to my rescue" ad. on your sixth page? Confidentially, Hopkins, I don't think you "look rather undignified" for a United States senator who has been true and faithful to Lincoln's plain people. It is necessary for a United States senator of experience to use the advertising columns of the Courant to reach his readers?

But I am disappointed from the dog story. How long since the able and distinguished editor of the Courant was opposing Bulkeley for the senate on high moral grounds? If our memory serves us it was not so long ago; and I have always wondered how it happened that all at once that opposition ceased. The editorial dog had the senatorial coon up a tree all right, all right, and there were those cruel enough to say that the coon muzzled the dog. Now, wouldn't that look awfully funny to see a coon muzzle the dog that treated him so? No wonder Lincoln's plain people asked and continue to ask: How could the coon muzzle the dog? To say the least, doesn't that coon dog look down as undignified as the ordinary barker?

But what is the use of talking about dogs when a fellow needs all his time to get into the senate? These editorial men make me weary. There's Colonel Trumbull, the brains of the New York Herald, saying that I have no more sense of getting into the senate than of being ambassador to the Court of Saint James. How does he know that? Teddy Roosevelt won't send me to the Saint's court, or at least give me a ticket to St. Vitus' dance, after my few years in the senate? Isn't the senate a stepping stone to things? Ask Aldrich. If he didn't step into a soft and elastic thing when he reached the rubber scholastic what is Bristow talking about? But Aldrich says Bristow is a liar! And there you have—straight senatorial dignity of a high order. How I do run on! If I don't stop, all the senators will be proved liars, or worse, out of the mouths of their dignified brethren.

Now, brother, many thanks for your distinguished consideration. For you I am all aflame with "that fire against which there is no insurance."
Ho! for the senate!

CHARLES F. THAYER.
Norwich, Aug. 1, 1910.

If Sick

Don't risk even one single penny!
And I will tell you why I say this. It is because every package of Dr. Shoop's medicine is absolutely free of cost. No one need risk even one single penny. Just think what this means to the suffering sick.

No risk, no expense, nothing whatever unless health first returns for 30 full days, and without the risk of a single penny, you can use either of our medicines. Dr. Shoop's Restorative or his Kidney Rheumatic Remedy.

Why purchase any medicine whose maker dare not back it just as I do by this remarkable offer?

POETRY.

THERE ISN'T ANYONE FOR ME TO PLAY WITH ANY MORE.

(The last words of Mark Twain.)
The glow is fading from the western sky,
And one by one my comrades, as of yore,
Have slipped up their play and said good-bye.

Don't cry, dear heart! for I am worn and old;
No longer have I largess in my love's best gifts to me I could not hold.

There isn't anyone for me to play with any more.

I miss the tender handclasp of old friends—
The kisses of loved ones gone before;
'Tis lonely when the heart first comprehends
There isn't anyone for me to play with any more.

I need these loving hearts, so fond and true,
I want them in my arms, as heretofore;
When they are reached—I shall no longer feel
There isn't anyone for me to play with any more.

—James Terry White.

SCATTERED.

Scattered to east and west and north,
Some with the faint heart, some the stout,
Each to the battle of life went forth,
And all alone we must fight it out.

We had been gathered from cot and cradle,
From the moorland farm and the tattered street,
Brought together by chances strange,
And knitted together by friendship sweet.

Not in the sunshine, not in the rain,
Not in the night, when stars untold,
Shall we ever meet again,
Or be as we were in the days of old.

But as ships cross, and more cheerily
Having changed tidings upon the sea,
So I am richer by them, I know,
And they are not poorer, I trust, by me.
